

Test Certifiers approved to issue Location Test Certificates for LPG

The Hazardous Substance Regulations require sites storing over 100 kg of LPG to have a current Location Test Certificate.

From March 2011, LPG suppliers must not supply LPG to a site holding more than 100 kg unless the site holds a valid Location Test Certificate or is following the requirements of a code of practice<sup>1</sup>.

If a site storing over 100 kgs of LPG does not have a Location Test Certificate, you need to contact a test certifier to obtain a certificate.

ERMA approved test certifiers who can issue Location Test Certificates for LPG are listed on the following pages. The certifiers are listed by region, but many are available to work outside their regions of residence. This is a current list as at 3 December 2010.

Test certifiers are not employed by ERMA New Zealand and there is no set fee for issuing test certificates. The cost for a certificate is a commercial arrangement between you and the test certifier.

If you have any questions, please contact your LPG supplier in the first instance.

Further information about Location Test Certificates is provided in the guide available from this link to the ERMANZ website:
